DETAILED ACTION

Allowable Subject Matter

The indicated allowability of the claims is withdrawn in view of the newly discovered reference(s). Rejections based on the newly cited reference(s) follow.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Houston.

Houston discloses a frame fig.1; a housing coupled to and at least partially surrounding said frame 10; a user engagement mechanism coupled to said frame for relative movement with respect thereto 22, said user engagement mechanism comprising at least one of a pedal, a step, a graspable member 22, and a planar surface; a resistance varying mechanism coupled between said frame and associated with said user engagement mechanism abstract, said resistance varying mechanism being operative to cause a change of an exertion by a user engaged with the user engagement mechanism during an exercise session abstract; control circuitry at least partially surrounded by said housing and electrically coupled to said resistance varying mechanism fig. 1, said control circuitry having an input 29; and digital storage device storing control signals claim 8, and the voice of a virtual personal trainer, wherein said control signals and said voice of a virtual personal trainer are interrelated col. 5, lines 9 – et seq., said digital storage device being coupled to said input of said control circuitry whereby said exercise apparatus can be operated within an exercise session by varying a resistance of said user engagement mechanism in accordance with said control signals with the accompaniment of said voice of said virtual personal trainer abstract, said digital storage device is at least one of coupled to said frame fig. 1, coupled to said housing, and at least partially surrounded by said housing fig. 1.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 3 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Houston.

Houston does not disclose input to said control circuitry includes an input port, and wherein said digital storage device is coupled to said input port by a cable, however, it is well known in the art, to transmit data via a cable and would have been obvious in view of Houston's control system.

Claims 4-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Houston in view of Dyer et al.

As for claim 4, as Houston discloses a microprocessor claim 16.

Houston does not specifically disclose said digital storage device comprises at least one of a CD optical digital storage, other forms of optical digital storage, a hard disk magnetic digital storage, other forms of magnetic digital storage, RAM semiconductor digital memory, and other forms of semiconductor digital memory.

Dyer et al disclose said digital storage device comprises at least one of a CD optical digital storage, other forms of optical digital storage, a hard disk magnetic digital storage, other forms of magnetic digital storage, RAM semiconductor digital memory, and other forms of semiconductor digital memory col. 12, lines 54 – et seq.

It would have been obvious to use Dyer et al's storage device with Houston, as it is well known as taught by Dyer et al, to use a digital storage device, for storing control signals of an operating system.

As for claim 5, Dyer further discloses said resistance varying mechanism includes at least one of a brake and a motor 64, and further comprising an output port coupled to at least one of said control circuitry and said input port, which provides audio output signals of at least said voice of said virtual personal trainer col. 11, lines 47 – et seq.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 6-8, 10-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Dyer et al.

Dyer et al disclose a user engagement mechanism including at least one of a pedal, a step, a graspable member, and a planar surface fig. 1; an exertion varying mechanism 64 coupled to said user engagement mechanism, said exertion varying mechanism being operative to cause a change of an exertion by a user engaged with the user engagement mechanism during an exercise session abstract; and circuitry electrically coupled to said exertion varying mechanism and being operationally receptive to control signals which are provided in correlation with a voice of a virtual personal trainer col. 12, lines 40 – et seq., wherein both said control signals and said voice of a virtual personal trainer are, at least at some point in time, stored together in a digital storage medium col. 12, lines 40 – et seq., whereby said exercise apparatus can be operated within an exercise session with the capability of both varying an exertion of said user and contemporaneously providing said voice of a virtual personal trainer col. 12, lines 40 – et seq., said digital storage medium associated with digital device can derive said control signals and said voice of said virtual personal trainer from said digital storage medium col. 12, lines 40 – et seq., said digital storage medium is selected from the group consisting essentially of magnetic media, optical media, and semiconductor media col. 12, lines 40 – et seq., said circuitry receives said control signals from a server which communicates over a network fig. 5,

Claims 9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Dyer et al in view of Mertesdorf.

Dyer does not disclose said optical media is a compact disc (CD).

Mertesdorf discloses compact disc (CD).

It would have been obvious to use Mertesdorf's CD with Dyer et al's media storage, as it is well known as taught by Mertesdorf, to use a CD, for storing audible feedback in an exercise system.
